

IceBreaker: Defend the egg

Does anyone know what is a vocation?

A vocation is a life where one is devoted to God through their own individual lifestyle.

Painters, musicians, singers, ball players, regular people including yourself

What makes a vocation a vocation?

Serving God through it

I'm going to show a video of a priest who never realized his calling until later in life

Video

My Testimony: Growing up, where I'm at now , who I wan't to be

Projects              College

Deacon/Married/Able to help others/Detective

Now why do you think we did that exercise at the beginning?

In a way we are all called to protect and serve Jesus' message including our faith

You see how all the teams kinda did it differently since we all have different lives I hope, We are called together to share our differences and work together to spread that Love that we receive

Theres a quote I like from Logic that just came out in his sophomore album the incredible true story where at the end of the song there was a huge quote

Logic 2:57-

Explanation of speech

Now What's your calling?

What will be your testimony?

These are things you should be talking about now, not later in the future where you forget some of the blessings you just received

It's now where you will receive your calling and it maybe not be tonight, it maybe might not be tomorrow but you should keep praying and ask the Holy Spirit for guidance

Without that guidance our sense of greed kicks in and we waste our time and money on professions we don't even like it's up to God on who you're going to be but you have to be open and so with that I would like to leave you with some of the words of Pope Francis "Communion is essential. God's and man's enemy, the devil, is no match for the Gospel, cannot compete against the humble power of prayer and the Sacraments, but can do much harm to the Church by tempting our humanity."

We must nurture our faith like how we took care of the eggs.

We all have our own calling it's up to us whether we want to be united under God and indivisible

Please Stand